Annual Meeting 2024 | January 28-30
Harrah's Waterfront | Atlantic City, NJ

ASLA
NEW JERSEY

DESIGN AWARDS PROGRAM

The New Jersey Chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects is pleased to issue a call for entries for the 2024 Design Awards Program.

The awards program seeks to broaden professional boundaries, increase public awareness of the role of landscape architects, raise the standards of the discipline and bring recognition to organizations and individuals who demonstrate superior skill in the practice and study of landscape architecture.

A jury of qualified professionals from a sibling ASLA chapter will review each submittal and determine winners in each category. Award-winning projects will be featured in upcoming NJASLA newsletters, on our website, and in displays promoting the profession within the State.

We will honor award winners and showcase their projects live at our conference at Harrah's Waterfront in Atlantic City January 28th through January 30th. The awards presentation will feature images of the winning projects and emphasize the projects' program, design intent, challenges, and solutions. We hope to provide a more complete understanding of successful solutions to complex design problems and, thus, help us all become better landscape architects.

Please review the levels of recognition, awards categories, and eligibility requirements carefully. Our categories and eligibility have been revised.

Considering a framework of diversity, equity and inclusion as fundamental to good design, all project types are welcome.

If applying for this award, please be sure to select the 'Equity / Justice Award Entry' box found on the Entry form.

ENTRY CATEGORIES:

I. LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURAL DESIGN:

Recognition of built, site-specific works of landscape architectural design. For large, phased projects, at least the first stage must be completed and be representative of the entire project to be eligible for entry (see Category VI for Unbuilt Projects).

This category is divided into four separate groups:

A. RESIDENTIAL DESIGN

Single or multi-unit residences, or private gardens.

B. SITE DESIGN

Commercial, institutional, housing, parks, recreation, and specialty landscapes such as zoos or arboreta.

C. PLANTING DESIGN

The submission should represent a significant portion of a site, where the overall project has not been submitted. It should exhibit creative application of planting design principles resulting in exceptional space(s) within the larger landscape.

The jury will consider the clarity of the design narrative, identification of the project challenges, quality of the design solution, the quality and impact of the graphic presentation, functionality, context, appropriateness to the site and design solution significance.

II. HISTORIC LANDSCAPES:

Recognizes outstanding projects focused on historic preservation, renovation, adaptation, or accessibility improvements of historic landscapes. This category also recognizes landmark landscapes that have retained their original design for more than 15 years. These projects normally include in-depth exploration relative to the site, its historical significance, and the intent and function of the original design. Projects in this category must include completed restoration of the site in question and must be documented in the same manner as Landscape Architectural Design projects.

The jury will concentrate on the “authenticity” of the restoration and the research that led to the design solutions. Where compromises were made, the appropriateness and sophistication of the final solution will count heavily. The quality of the project in terms of historic preservation and/or interpretive renovation will be considered.

III. LANDSCAPE PLANNING AND ANALYSIS:

Recognition of the depth and breadth of professional practice with the process and research methodology that guides Landscape Architects in making planning and design decisions. Such projects normally include graphic as well as written components. Entrees may include master plans, visioning plans, feasibility studies, general development plans, transportation plans, government environmental studies, environmental assessment/site suitability studies, visual and/or natural resource inventories or post construction evaluations.

The jury will base their evaluations on the clarity and completeness of the presentation of the process that lead to the solutions and recommendations; the value of the project in demonstrating the appropriate and expanding role of landscape architects in the Land Planning/Design Process.

ENTRY CATEGORIES:

IV. LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURAL COMMUNICATION AND RESEARCH:

Recognition of communication and/ or research oriented projects. Rewards achievements in communication about the landscape architecture profession, both internally and to the general public. Includes written/published documents, graphic presentations and digital image presentations. Entries may include firm brochures; magazine articles; environmental educational materials; publications used to enhance the professional expertise of landscape architects; publications promoting visibility and the potential of the profession. Recognition of scholarly pursuits which provide information that advances the body of knowledge for the profession.

The jury will base the evaluation on the clarity and focus of the study, the thoroughness of the methodology and the presentation of results that will have a significant impact on the practicing Profession.

Jury will be guided by the professional quality and visual impact of the communication effort; the clarity of the message and its significance and importance to the public and/or the profession.

V. CLIMATE, RESILIENCY, AND RESTORATION:

This award recognizes significant environmental and ecological enhancement improvements achieved through community involvement, with the participation/leadership of landscape architects. Rewards efforts at the community, county or state level focused on grass roots participation. Recognize projects focusing on sustainable design practices and construction methods and climate adaptability.

The jury will evaluate the effectiveness of the leadership and guidance provided by the landscape architect, the significance of the project to the community, and the degree and nature of the community involvement in the project. Visual documentation of the significance and success of the project is of great importance.

VI. THE UNBUILT PROJECT:

Occasionally, significant design projects commissioned to a landscape architect are fully designed, but for some reason beyond the control of the designer, is not constructed. Such projects may be submitted (normally under Category I) for award consideration under this category. This may include projects paused or cancelled due to funding issues, competition submissions that were not awarded, etc.

Since there are no photographs of an unbuilt project, the jury will base its evaluation solely on the project description, drawings, renderings, or other media representing the project and the explanation of the special circumstances. Detailed drawings are encouraged.

VII. COMMUNITY SERVICE:

Recognizing projects accomplished through significant volunteer service or pro-bono design by the landscape architect. Projects may be built or unbuilt.

VIII. STUDENT ENTRIES:

Students from New Jersey, enrolled in an accredited landscape architecture program, may enter outstanding projects in landscape architecture related to design, graphics, analysis, research, or communication. Student entries require the support of a course instructor or department chair.
